Ledoux convened the meeting at 11:03am eastern and confirmed attendance.

Bartanen provided the committee with an update of the I-CAR Repairability Technical Support website , which can be viewed at <http://rts.i-car.com>. Functionality including technical inquiries is already in place on the site but Bartanen cautioned that this version and this url are still in beta version. While news media and other associations are welcome to publicize the website and its opportunities, an I-CAR launch expected sometime before June 30, 2014 could mean changes to page links, etc.

NASTF offered to assist Bartanen with OEM connections when needed. Currently, only a Subaru contact was requested and was provided.

Potter asked the Committee to be alert for collision industry issues where access to OEM security information (including key codes) and traditionally non-collision service information may be a growing concern. Since NASTF efforts in those areas are already well-established, solutions may be integrated into the I-CAR repairability initiative.

The Meeting was adjourned at 11:35am eastern.
