Morgan convened the meeting at 11:10am eastern and confirmed attendance.

Bartanen reviewed progress at I-CAR with the Repairability Technical Service indicating all (market significant) OEMs are participating in the service though some are more or less advanced in their available information. Hyundai information is expected soon. Later in 2015, I-CAR will require a free account and login to access certain features of RTS. The Committee suggested making the link to RTS from nastf.org to a more obvious and prominent location. Potter agreed to work with Bartanen on the details of that feature.

Ledoux presented Honda's recent training resource alliance with I-CAR RTS indicating an expansion of the available modules would be rolled out at six-month intervals. [Honda training modules are sold, $41, and delivered from the RTS site.] Other OEMs are reviewing this centralized and standard delivery option with I-CAR RTS.

Tim Morgan indicated his availability to present the CRC report at the November 4 NASTF Fall 2015 General Meeting in Las Vegas.

The Meeting was adjourned at 11:50am eastern.
